

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Spring 2013

I am pleased to present the second issue of the Global eLearning Journal for 2013! This issue contains a series of articles contributed from International scholars who submitted manuscripts to an International Symposium to be held on the campus of Texas A&M University-Commerce. Dr. Larry Lemanski, who organized the Symposium, has provided the following introduction:

I am delighted to have this opportunity to applaud the outstanding work represented in this collection of scholarly publications authored by many international scholars, including those from India, Iran, Nigeria, Slovakia, and the USA. Our original intent was to hold an International Conference at Texas A&M University, Commerce, Texas, USA, in March of 2013. However, as it turned out, circumstances at the university made it impractical to carry out the planning and execution of the conference this year. We hope to host such a conference at a future time. As part of the plans for the International Conference, we had intended to publish submitted manuscripts electronically in our on-line journal, the Global eLearning Journal edited by Dr. Richard Lumadue, Editor-in-Chief, Texas A&M University-Commerce, Texas, USA and a very distinguished and accomplished Editorial Board. In evaluating the outstanding scholarship submitted for the Symposium, we felt that it was critically important to ensure that this excellent work be shared with the international community of scholars in a timely manner. Consequently, the review of these manuscripts for publication now has been completed by our Editor and Editorial Board and the highest quality manuscripts have been selected for inclusion in this special issue of the Global eLearning Journal, which we hope will be of significant interest to scholars around the world.

As the Chairperson of the Organizing Committee for the Conference, I want to personally thank the authors for their outstanding scholarly contributions. I also want to thank Professor Dr. Ajay Kumar Singh, Professor Dr. B.P. Singh, and Sima Singh of the Delhi School of Professional Studies and Research (DSPSR), India, for their untiring efforts to help plan and promote the Conference, which led to the preparation of this very scholarly collection of publications.

I sincerely hope that in the not-too-distant future we will be able to host the originally-planned International Conference in Texas.

Sincerely,

Larry F. Lemanski, Ph.D.
Executive Director and Chief Research Officer
Office of Research and Sponsored Programs
Professor of Biology and Environmental Science
Texas A&M University-Commerce
Commerce, Texas 75429
USA

Thank you Dr. Lemanski!

I invite you to submit a manuscript and join with us in our efforts to guide, impact and transform digital learning on a global scale.

Regards,

Rick

Rick Lumadue PhD
Editor-in-Chief

All submissions to the Global eLearning Journal are subjected to a double blind review selection process. Scholars, administrators, policymakers, educators, and students who wish to shape the future of Global eLearning in Higher Education are encouraged to submit manuscripts.